FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Semi-pro basketball league teams having open try-outs

Tempe, AZ (August 11th, 2010) – The Community Basketball Leagues, a youth and adult amateur based basketball company, will be having open try-outs for their semi-pro basketball league teams nationwide. The CBL semi-pro league will field two teams per city location, a prep team with players that are post-high school and/or between the ages of 17 and 23 and a grad team with players that are post-college and/or ages 24 and up.

“Based on our CBL summer league play here in Elkhart, IN we have some talented players and I plan to field some very competitive teams,” said Brian Pearson, General Manager of the CBL’s Elkhart Evolution.

The CBL semi-pro league is scheduled to tip-off with exhibition games in April and regular season play will begin in May of 2011. Team try-outs for some cities will begin within the next two to three weeks. The CBL Exposure League will promote players to colleges and already established professional basketball leagues and teams. Players that want to play in the semi-pro league must register on the CBL website and try-outs are open to the public.

CBL semi-pro players are not financially compensated for participating in the league and anyone can lease a semi-pro team for one year from the CBL. To get more information about the CBL Exposure League visit www.CBLHOOPSUSA.com or call 1-888-228-3855.
